Location

South Wales is not only an area abounding with historic treasures, steeped in folklore, myths and legends, but is also unique for its outstanding and spectacular beauty.

At its heart are the Brecon Beacons, set within the 519 square mile Brecon Beacons National Park. From a height of approximately 3000 feet (886 metres) Pen-Y-Fan stands majestically as the highest peak of this magnificent mountain range.

Its presence is such, that the park and surrounding countryside never fail to impress visitors with its untamed, unspoilt beauty characterised by rugged peaks, mountain lakes and green valleys, all traversed by the splendid rivers Usk and Wye.

The Park not only comprises the Brecon Beacons, it is an area of landscape contrasts, with the grey and imposing Black Mountains to the west and 'waterfall country' at the top of the Neath Valley to the south.

It is also renowned as a training ground for the armed forces, notably the SAS.

Many thanks for the fantastic weekend. The weekend and all the activities were perfect in everyway! An unforgettable experience.
